2. At Monday's staff meeting [Redacted] asked me to have such a report made to him and [Redacted] as soon as possible, so that they could report further to Mr. Colby. I said that I was bringing all of the addressees of this memo together to prepare a single unified report or separate reports to be forwarded simultaneously. I have asked [Redacted] to provide his comments to [Redacted] and I have asked [Redacted] to work out the report with [Redacted]

3. You may also want to get informal or written comments from [Redacted] OCI shop, or at least refer to them in your report, since this adds another dimension and viewpoint.

4. I told [Redacted] that I thought [Redacted] responsibility in PRG for development of analytical techniques made it essential that his views be prominent in this report.

5. Please try to get on [Redacted] calendar this week to brief them. I'm interested in what you conclude, but I'm not desirous of standing between all of you and the IC Staff front office. Just let me know what you decide and what you do.
